IE Discovery Offers Freedom Of Information Act Support to Government Agencies

Austin, Texas (August 17, 2010)— IE Discovery, a leading provider of comprehensive Discovery Management solutions to the legal community, is now offering Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) Services to government agencies. The service is designed to be a cost-effective solution for agencies facing the often-onerous burden of fulfilling FOIA requests, considering the enormous quantity of potentially relevant records.

In 2009, according to the U.S. Department of Justice, the Federal Government received 557,825 FOIA requests and President Obama issued an executive order calling for increased diligence on the part of government when it comes to making information available to the public. At the same time, data is growing exponentially, making prompt responses an onerous burden. “As government agencies employ digital technology such as databases, e-mail, collaboration software, Twitter, instant and text messaging to execute the agency’s mission, responding to FOIA requests becomes more and more difficult,” said Pat McColloch, Director of Client Services at IE Discovery. “FOIA requests now also include government information maintained for agencies by federal contractors, which exacerbates the problem.”

IE Discovery has extensive experience providing data solutions to federal agencies and expertise with document and record management systems and processes. The company’s FOIA offering includes a full range of services, including: electronic and/or manual search for Personally Identifiable Information (PII) and Privacy Act Information; documentation to support challenges by the requestor, first pass review of each document; chain-of-custody; redaction services; and production in a variety of formats.

IE Discovery’s FOIA services are available through GSA Schedule GS-25F-0004P. For more information about IE Discovery’s FOIA offering, please contact Pat McColloch at pmccolloch@iediscovery.com or 703.527.2700.
